Jennifer Bagg is the Managing Partner of HWG LLP. She also advises tech and communications clients on regulatory and transactional matters.

Jennifer works with companies in the common carrier, VoIP, wireless, and broadband sectors to navigate complex regulations. She advises these clients on matters involving the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), state public utility commissions, Congress, the Administration, and the courts. Jennifer has extensive experience advising clients on issues such as universal service contributions and distributions, intercarrier compensation, CALEA, E911, and net neutrality. She also represents clients on privacy-related matters, including TCPA compliance and defense, and has substantial experience in transactional matters, including start-up issues, mergers and acquisitions, regulatory approvals, and commercial contract negotiations.

Prior to joining HWG, Jennifer was in-house counsel at a London-based, multinational telecommunications company. During her tenure as in-house counsel, she served as a commercial legal advisor supporting UK-based sales, product, procurement, and operations teams. She later oversaw the company's pan-European local legal teams and off-shore offices, and advised on large, corporate-wide transactions.
